

FECS Lecture 2003

Professor Hans H Brintzinger will deliver the 2003 FECS Lecture 'Twenty Years of ansa-Metallocene Polymerization Catalysis. Where are we Standing Now?' on 10 August 2003 during the XVth FECHEM Conference on Organometallic Chemistry, in Zurich, Switzerland.

The FECHEM Conference on Organometallic Chemistry, one of a series of FECS Conferences, promoted by the FECS Division of Organometallic Chemistry, will bring together chemists from industry and academia and provide an international forum for the presentation and discussion of new findings in the dynamic and exciting field of organometallic chemistry. Further information is on the web at www.fechem.unizh.ch/

Hans Brintzinger is Professor of Chemistry at the University of Konstanz, Germany. His research activities are aimed at the synthesis of organometallic compounds and at investigations of their reactivities, e.g. as catalysts for polymerization reactions. An essential task in this regard is the elucidation of reaction mechanisms in these often highly complex catalyst systems by modern analytical methods and modelling tools. Further details of his work are on the web at www.chemie.uni-konstanz.de/~aqbri/aqbri.html

The FECS Lecture serves to enhance the image of European chemistry and to promote scientific cooperation in Europe. It rotates among FECS member societies and is delivered at a scientific event outside the lecturer's own country.

Note: The Federation of European Chemical Societies and Professional Institutions is a voluntary association, the object of which is to promote cooperation in Europe between those non-profit-making scientific and technical societies in the field of chemistry whose membership consists largely of individual qualified chemists and whose interests include the science and/or practice of chemistry. Founded in 1970, its 50 member societies together represent some 200,000 individual chemists in academia, industry and government in Europe.
